

Testvale Squares Celebrates a slightly late Burns Night

A couple of weeks later than planned, Testvale Squares held their Burns Night Supper on 6th February at the Totton & Eling Community Centre. Club Members and their guests were asked to wear something tartan and they didn't disappoint – the tartan army turned up en masse! The Haggis was 'piped' in by Alan and 6 others on Recorders, all very tuneful. We then had a fantastic sit-down supper prepared by Carol, Alan and other members of the Club with hot-smoked salmon, gammon ham, potatoes and salads, cheeses, then cakes, teas and coffees.

After supper we had some 'Burns' poetry from Paul, a few silly games, including 'Guess what's in the Sporan' where the ladies had to decide what the squishy things inside the men's sporrans were, not quite sure who enjoyed that more, then Kay directed us through the Gay Gordons, a lovely dance which just about anyone can do under guidance. It was a fabulous evening shared with members and their guests.
