

Testvale Dancers visit Stonehenge

On a very blustery and showery day in mid June (whatever happened to 'flaming' June), five Testvale dancers visited Stonehenge to find out what one of us (Lindsay) has been doing for the past 9 months working on the Neolithic House project. After a quick bus ride up to and back from the Stones (they're still the same as we visited them as a child!) we took a walk around the Neolithic site and chatted about the build of the house, all done using hand tools by volunteers, talked to some of the volunteers working on the day, then had a look through the Gift Shop before departing for cake and coffee at Wilton Garden Centre. A good day out with friends and fellow dancers.
